

Senate Election Results

April 2014

On 7 September 2013 the Liberal-National Coalition was elected to form government, having achieved a majority of seats in the House of Representatives.

There are 76 seats in the Senate. Twelve senators represent each state, and the Australian Capital Territory and the Northern Territory are represented by two senators each.

Senators representing the states are normally elected for fixed terms of six years, commencing on 1 July following the election, and ceasing on 30 June six years later. As such, the senators elected at the 2013 Federal election will not commence their terms until 1 July 2014.

The term of the four senators from the territories is not fixed, rather defined by the date of the general House of Representatives election. Senators representing the territories commence their terms on the day that they are elected and their terms expire the day prior to the next general election day.

On 20 February 2014 the High Court, sitting as the Court of Disputed Returns, declared the 2013 Western Australian Senate election result void. As a result, on 28 February Western Australian Governor Malcolm McCusker issued the writ for a fresh election of six senators for Western Australia, which was held on 5 April 2014.

The Hawker Britton Occasional Paper on the results of the 2014 Western Australian Senate re-election is available here.

The results and further figures are also available on the AEC website here.

Senate election results

The AEC has declared the following result from the 2013 Federal election and the WA re-election:

Party	Continuing	New	Total
Liberal/National Party/CLP	16	17	33
Australian Labor Party	13	12	25
Australian Greens	6	4	10
Palmer United Party	0	3	3
Others	1	4	5

The Liberal/National Coalition secured 17 senate seats. New Coalition senators include James McGrath and Arthur Matthew Canavan in Queensland, and Linda Reynolds in Western Australia.

The Australian Labor Party secured 12 senate seats, which represents a 6-seat loss on Labor's result in the last election of this half-Senate at the 2007 Federal election.

New Labor senators include Chris Ketter in Queensland and Joe Bullock in Western Australia.

The incoming Senate will be constituted by an unprecedented number of senators from minor parties:

- Four senators from The Australian Greens were elected, including new Senator for Victoria Janet Rice. The Australian Greens will hold ten senate seats from 1 July 2014.
- Three senators from the Palmer United Party were elected:
 - Glenn Lazarus in Queensland;
 - o Jacqui Lambie in Tasmania; and
 - o Dio Wang in Western Australia.
- David Leyonhjelm from the Liberal Democratic Party was elected Senator for New South Wales.
- Bob Day from the Family First Party was elected Senator for South Australia.
- Ricky Muir from the Australian Motoring Enthusiasts Party was elected Senator for Victoria.
- Independent Nick Xenophon, from the Nick Xenophon Group, was also re-elected as Senator for South Australia.

A full list of the Senators elected at the 2013 Federal election is available on page 4.

The Hawker Britton Occasional Paper on the House of Representatives election results and the Senate Composition until 1 July 2014 is available here.

Replacement of Sen. Bob Carr

Following the resignation of Sen. Bob Carr, former ALP Member for Robertson, Deborah O'Neill, was chosen by the Australian Labor Party to fill the Senate vacancy. Ms O'Neill has been chosen to fill two vacancies: the remainder of former Senator Carr's term until 30 June 2014, and the term he was recently elected for, commencing 1 July 2014 for a period of six years.

The NSW State Parliament had a joint sitting on 14 November to fill the first vacancy. A second joint sitting ahead of 1 July 2014 will be needed to appoint Ms O'Neill to the second vacancy, as legally the two terms cannot be signed off on in one joint sitting.

Legislative agenda of the 44th Parliament

Following the result of the election, neither the Coalition nor the Australian Labor Party can command the 39 votes needed to pass legislation or to support motions. Unlike the current Senate, the votes of the Australian Labor Party and the Australian Greens senators combined will no longer be sufficient to pass legislation or support motions.

From 1 July 2014, the balance of power in the Senate rests with a diverse group of independents and minor parties.

If Labor and the Greens oppose, six of the eight crossbench senators will be needed to support a Government bill or motion. Up to five of the eight may be needed to defeat a non-Government motion including a motion of disallowance.

The policy platforms of some of the minor parties are provided in the following Hawker Britton Occasional Papers:

- The Hawker Britton Occasional Paper on the Palmer United Party is available here.
- The Hawker Britton Occasional Paper on the Liberal Democratic Party is available here.
- The Hawker Britton Occasional Paper on the Family First Party is available here.
- The Hawker Britton Occasional Paper on the Australian Motoring Enthusiasts Party is available here.
